literature, courses, and more will also help you pinpoint the sources of the potential threats to your relationship. You have multiple relationship resources to choose from because not every couple needs the same support. Take advantage of the tools that make the most sense for you and your partner. If these resources are not right from you, we still recommend that you seek relationship support from other sources.

Come back in a month or two after working together on your relationship. Retake this test to see if your results change for the better. Your results will likely improve and that would be a sign that you are moving in the right direction with your partner. Remember, you can return to BreakUpTest.com periodically to check on the stability of your relationship. If you see these same results
